

Concrete Policies, Practices, and Partnerships to Promote Implementation of the Global Compacts for Migrants and Refugees

The time is ripe—and solutions and partnerships are ready—to see the two new Global Compacts make a concrete difference that all can appreciate: states and communities together with refugees and migrants.

We say this with great confidence after our NGO Committee on Migration* has met with more than fifty (50) governments in each region of the world to discuss what is needed to take this important work forward.

As Member States are on the verge of adopting the Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration and the Global Compact on Refugees, we believe the time is ripe to circulate a compendium of good policies and practices that relate directly to Compact goals and that Member States, Civil Society and other actors have already implemented with shared interest, effort and commitment.

To launch the compendium, attached are forty (40) policies and practices that serve to achieve goals in both Compacts -- goals widely shared by Civil Society that are priorities of our NGO Committee, namely protection and assistance for migrants in situations of vulnerability across the migration cycle, particularly women and children, those forced to migrate due to climate change and environmental degradation, and those encountering xenophobia and lack of access to services in countries of transit and destination.

The attached templates for these priority areas include related policies and practices and specify where each one connects to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), the New York Declaration on Refugees and Migrants (NYD), the Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration (GCM), and the Global Compact on Refugees (GCR).

In our experience, policies and practices which involve partnerships and collaboration among stakeholders, especially with Member States and Civil Society at local and national levels, are most effective, sustainable, and politically feasible.

Our Committee hopes this compendium of practices, policies and partnerships will encourage and inspire Member States, the UN system, Civil Society, and all stakeholders to effectively implement actionable, human rights-based Global Compacts and motivate the development, application and sharing of new policies and practices to save lives and be of direct benefit to migrants, refugees and societies in the years ahead.

We reiterate our unwavering commitment to continue to collaborate with Member States, the UN system and the international community to build upon the monumental strides envisioned by the SDGs, the NYD, and the two new Global Compacts. We offer our partnership in the critical endeavor to effectively implement, follow-up and review progress made in relation to both Compacts.

*The mission of the NGO Committee on Migration is to advocate on behalf of the human rights of migrants in accordance with the United Nations Charter. Together with the International Catholic Migration Commission (ICMC) and the International Council of Voluntary Associations (ICVA), the NGO Committee on Migration is one of the three conveners of the global Civil Society Action Committee, which galvanizes civil society thinking, strategies and advocacy worldwide to achieve commitments of the 2016 UN High Level Summit for Refugees and Migrants through the Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration and the Global Compact on Refugees.

Migrants and Refugees in Situations of Vulnerability: Good Policies and Practices

Policy/Practice #1: Humanitarian Corridors

Brief Description:	A public-private partnership creating paths for refugees and vulnerable migrants (i.e. women and children; victims of persecution, torture or violence; the elderly; people with disabilities), to be given visas to safely and legally travel to, enter and be assisted to settle, work and integrate in the country of destination. Paths are an alternative to long and usually fruitless waits for formal resettlement processes or to engagement in risky, often deadly migration journeys outside of the law.

Policy/Practice #3: MERCOSUR Residence Agreement

Brief Description:	MERCOSUR (the Spanish acronym for the “Southern Common Market”) Residence Agreement is a multi-national, multi-stakeholder policy primarily aiming to resolve the issue of intraregional irregular migration; it creates paths for safe and regular migration, through its regularization provisions for unauthorized regional migrants. Through the treaty that was signed in 2002, migrants are also provided a number of rights - including the right to equal working conditions; family reunification; and access to education. While not consistently implemented by all signatories, this regional program is a good practice, establishing a legal framework for regional intergovernmental coordination of labor migration and providing increased protections for migrants in vulnerable situations.

The young people acquire the necessary knowledge and skills to produce documentaries that tell the real-life stories of the refugees and promote freedom of expression. Short commercial-like television or radio spots were produced to become part of major television and radio programming and the production of a major video. The films convey the personal stories and daily life of refugees who are fleeing the Syrian and Iraqi conflict in the camps in Jordan, providing the public with more information for understanding the refugees and for informing their conscience. The project has helped to create links and build bridges among the youth's associations on topics like the pursuit of peace, through dialogue among cultures, formation on today's issues, and information seminars on the mechanisms that rule the media and communication worlds on migration matters. An experience that has seen the young protagonists review and summarize the activities already undertaken and decide together how to continue this collaboration among the associations, how to develop projects and put together new synergies in spreading a culture of peace, primarily through training on present issues. Policy/Practice #7: Immigration Accompaniment Program
Brief Description:	A ministry of Judson Memorial Church in partnership with the New Sanctuary Coalition of New York City, the Immigration Accompaniment Program is a community-based, multi-stakeholder initiative in New York City (part of a wider national effort) that helps support vulnerable immigrant families as they try to address barriers and navigate an unknown and challenging legal system in order to secure basic rights for themselves. The program focuses on three main contributors to creating safe spaces for immigrants - (1) providing a support structure throughout immigration processes; (2) keeping family members informed; (3) holding legal officials accountable for due process and accurate information. The program pairs immigrants in final removal proceedings with volunteers who accompany them to their required, periodic check-in appointments with Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) and the Intensive Supervision Appearance Program (ISAP).

Migrant and Refugee Children: Good Policies and Practices

Policy/Practice #1: Birth registration: Integration with national services - Sudan

Brief Description: In Sudan, the Ministry of Health, in partnership with the World Health Organization, UNICEF, Plan International, integrated birth registration within vaccination campaigns. This enabled to reach children born into conflict-affected areas, remote communities, and situation of internal displacement, significantly increasing the rates of birth registration among children at risk.

Policy/Practice #3: Ensuring Birth Registration to Prevent Statelessness – Jordan

Brief Description: Implementation of a range of measures and new approaches to improve the registration of Syrian refugee births. It made birth and marriage registration procedures more accessible (Shari’a courts instituted flexible evidentiary rules to facilitate the registration of undocumented marriages); strengthened legal aid and counselling services; engaged communities as agents of change (birth registration awareness campaign); and ensured access to good quality maternal health services and effectively integrated birth registration into that system. Since 2017, undocumented children born in Syria, can now get an official Ministry of Education Service Card with all of their identifying information - proof of their legal identity, accepted by the Jordanian Courts and the Civil Status Dept. which facilitates access to basic services and helps prevent statelessness. The card does not replace a birth certificate.

outcome reports, etc.:	Government records indicate that, overall, 14,737 Syrian births were registered between January and July of 2017. This figure includes both Syrian children in camps and urban areas registered with UNHCR, and Syrian children not registered with UNHCR. In 2015, approximately 44,000 completely undocumented Syrian refugee children were identified in Jordan. By 2016, the application of complementary and flexible new approaches had reduced the number to approximately 8,800.

Policy/Practice #7: Mental Health Services for Refugees – Canada

Brief Description: Changing Direction, Changing Lives, released in May 2012, is the first mental health strategy for Canada. It aims to help improve the mental health and well-being of all people living in Canada. The Interim Federal Health Program (IFHP) was developed to cover all incoming refugees for basic medical care, including mental health and prescription drugs. After one year, refugees in Canada can be adopted into their provincial health system. Community-led integration support programs encourage socioeconomic success and mental well-being by helping refugees learn daily routines, speak the language, find employment, housing and more. Home-based and school-based services are provided to children. Counseling is available to traumatized and mentally ill children.

Many employees and trained volunteers are former immigrants or refugees.	Newly arrived and resettled refugees, asylum seekers and children. 70% of Syrian refugees in Victoria are children.	For individuals and parents – reception and resettlement support - help to overcome stressors such as language, poverty, housing, and social isolation which otherwise aggravate the psychological effects of emotional, physical trauma experienced prior to and during transit. For children - Decrease in the detrimental effects of poverty and stress on the family environment, and increase in children's early learning and well-being – ultimately benefitting the entire community. Young children whose parents have received support and/or treatment do better emotionally, socially, and academically. Children adapt and integrate easily. Counseling may help children cope with previous trauma and prevent possible issues with anger and violence. Given support, within ten years refugee children will learn a new language, make friends, grow up, go to university and eventually pay back into the economy. Policy/Practice #2: Immigration Policy Lab Algorithm
Brief Description:	In order to promote refugee integration, Switzerland has developed a pilot program assessing asylum seekers via an algorithm that analyzes their characteristics to recommend the region where they're most likely to find work. It then sends them to the canton that best fits their profile, rather than allocate them randomly. The program should hugely increase asylum seekers' chances of success in finding a job. Studies are under way, and indications are positive.
